CONTROL OF SCIENCE WITHIN SCENIHR KEY RESEARCH PAPERS EXCLUDED

Scientific Committee on Emerging and Newly Identified Health Risks (SCENIHR) member Dr Hansson Mild exposes control of science within the SCENIHR group. SCENIHR excluded many studies from the latest scientific review, including five studies by the Hardell Group, published in 2013. At the same time SCENIHR is excluding Dr. Mild's key scientific papers, but then promoting his participation as giving balance and transparency to this process. These studies are the longest studies on mobile phones and brain cancer.

The report fails to do a thorough review of hundreds of papers on non-ionizing electromagnetic fields (EMF) and biological health effects, with many papers containing new information in the field concerning EMR impacts.

In addition, Lukas Margaritis, Professor Emeritus from the University of Athens and Dr Adamantia Fragopoulou and esteemed colleagues forwarded a report to SCENIHR including references to superb research highlighting studies working with everyday use of wireless devices demonstrating serious impacts on oxidative stress induction, learning and memory deficits, fertility reduction and cell death in animal models. These studies are published in high quality peer reviewing journals and are still excluded from the SCENIHR report.

Dr Fragopoulou said "We have pointed out serious omissions of publications from the SCENIHR opinion during the hearing in Athens on March 27-28 as well as on the uploaded file to SCENIHR. We are expecting to see much more references in the final form of the report."

The Bioinitiative Group, Pandora Board, Susan Foster, Mona Nilsson and Dr Hansson Mild supported the Radiation Research Trust with letters sent directly to the Acting Director at the EU Commission.

The UK Radiation Research Trust is calling all politicians to raise this issue at the highest level as many lives are at risk and the public have a right to know.
